GEORGE DIDN'T WEAR A WIG

~~spoken, kid 1: In the eighteenth century, powdered wigs were fashionable and a sign of status.~~
~~spoken, kid 2: Some early presidents and delegates to the Continental Congress wore them.~~
~~spoken, kid 3: But not George Washington.~~

sing: George Washington powdered his hair.
George Washington powdered his hair.
George Washington powdered his hair,
but he did not wear a wig!

And by "wig" we mean the powdered kind.
They were all the rage in the eighteenth century.
And by "wig" we mean the powdered kind.
Aren't you glad you weren't born back then?

~~spoken, kid 4: You know, those wigs were probably hot and uncomfortable.~~
~~spoken, kid 5: Imagine wearing them without air conditioning.~~
~~spoken, kid 4 (again): No, thank you!~~

sing: Thomas Jefferson powdered his hair.
John Adams powdered his hair.
These two presidents powdered their hair,
but sometimes they both wore wigs!

And by "wig" we mean the powdered kind. They were all the rage in the eighteenth century.
And by "wig" we mean the powdered kind. Aren't you glad you weren't born back then?
'Cause you might just feel silly back then. With a giant powdered wig on your head!
